African violets receive taxonomic reclassification

(excerpts from an article in the latest African Violet Magazine by Winston Goretsky)

Over the years, botanists have discovered new and fascinating plants through the world and have tried to classify them according to accepted rules available at the time of discovery. Current methodology allows DNA analysis to form more accurate comparisons to provide a clearer picture of similarity or diversity. This research has resulted in a reclassification of many existing species, in particular for us the genus Saintpaulia appears to be more appropriately placed as a section within sub-genus Streptocarpella of the genus Streptocarpus instead of being a separate genus.

How will we now correctly cite this new reclassification?

- genus Streptocarpus subgenus Streptocarpella sect. Saintpaulia or
- genus Streptocarpus sect. Saintpaulia

Both are correct. The one including subgenus Streptocarpella just gives additional information, but Streptocarpus sect. Saintpaulia is unique and can be confused with nothing else.

It is highly recommended for anyone growing Saintpaulias that the original name be preserved in order to maintain the diversity and stability of this group. In the future there may be another reclassification that recognizes the diversity of Saintpaulias, and by preserving the distinctiveness today, we protect the future diversity of this group. (It also helps us in not having to rename every thing we are currently growing.) For more info, visit <http://www.gesneriads.info/articles/saintpaulia/saintpaulia/>

From the President's Keyboard

Hello everyone,

And now we are heading for the holiday season! We all know it is hectic but sure can be a lot of fun also. And speaking of fun, after this next meeting Monday, November 20, it is time for our Holiday Feast! What's not to love?

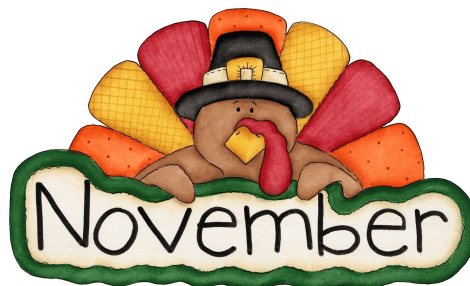

I super enjoyed last month's meeting. Our speaker Linda Hall and her mom were wonderful guests and Linda was full of interesting information about African violets I have never seen before. Her presentation was more than I ever expected to see. She came all the way from Missouri just to share her knowledge about unusual bloom and foliage types of African violets with the Cincinnati African violet club and our club.

I am finding over the years I have belonged to the many African violet clubs, that we are a bunch of caring and giving people. Linda is one of the best!

Our next meeting will be full of useful information for everyone. Everyone is to bring in plants you are having problems with as well as the plantlets we took home a few months ago. We will work on the problem plants we bring to the meeting and check the progress of our 'Tiny Dancer' and 'Jersey Lilacs' starter plants we potted up at our August meeting. We'll also learn more about Impatiens Necrotic Spot Virus, also known as INSV.

Remember to keep setting down leaves and potting up babies to sell at the Sales table at our spring show and sale in April. We pretty much sold out of stock this past sale!!

See you on Monday! – Jo

Win a Plant Stand!

Don't Forget! Every plant raffle ticket sold at club meetings this year is being entered in a drawing for a light stand complete with lights! The winning ticket will be drawn at the Holiday Dinner in December. Who feels like a winner???

LOOKING FOR . . .

Are your plants blooming and it's not time for a show or a meeting? Take a photo and email to Vicki (vicksterferguson@gmail.com). They can be put in the newsletter for all to enjoy. Be sure to include the name of the plant.

PLEASE SHARE.....

We would love to hear from the club members! Please share any growing tips, repotting tips or helpful information on the growing of your collection. Photos always make it more interesting.

Do you like jigsaw puzzles?

Kasey Angeloni is wondering if there is anyone would be interested in doing a puzzle exchange. She's been doing a lot of them lately and if no one in club wants them, they'll be donated. She doesn't want them back, so you can keep them. Range from 500-1000 pieces. (Maybe Vicki will remember to bring them to the meeting this month!!! Oooooops!!!)
